

Courtship Cha Cha

Cichlid ladies are very particular; they like for their partners to have great dance moves! When the male is courting, he first chases her, and once he gets her attention, he will shake his tail-fin in a quiver display. If she likes his dance, she will choose him over another male.

The move: The Cuban Cha Cha captures the spirit of the cichlid courting dance, where one partner moves towards the other in a chase-like rock-step, before the couple quickly shuffles to a quick, quiver-like cha-cha. This Latin American dance is great for romance!
